HIST-320 Modern Middle East 4 Credits

Prerequisites: LS-201

Minimum Class Standing: Sophomore

The history of the Middle East from World War I to the Gulf War of 1991 will be surveyed. It focuses on the Arabic-speaking areas of the former Ottoman empire, Turkey, Iran, and Israel. Thematically, the course explores major themes in Middle East history; the rise of nationalism and formation of nation-states; economic development strategies of the new states and formation of new social classes; the impact of Israeli and Palestinian nationalism and conflicts; oil and politics; the Islamic Revolution in Iran, and the Gulf War. The course also examines the impact of outside powers on the region; problems of political, economic, and cultural decolonization; and efforts to reassert Islamic identity in an era of tightening globalization. Considerable attention will be devoted to the region since 1945 and to the problems and promises of the present day.

HIST-322 Africa in the World Economy 4 Credits

Prerequisites: LS-201

Africa's involvement in the changing world economy and its role in the contemporary world will be examined. Its goal is to provide students a framework for understanding Africa's contemporary economic challenges and opportunities. The course begins by examining the political, social and economic history of the continent since independence, focusing on how the lack of visible material and social progress in the post-independence period framed popular perceptions about Africa. The role of external players and ideas and the nature of local initiatives and responses in shaping Africa's place in the world economy will also be examined.

HIST-329 Science, Technology, and the Modern World 4 Credits

Prerequisites: LS-201

This course will examine the political, economic, social, and cultural consequences of science and technology over the past 500 years as well as consider how science and technology have contributed to some of the most important ethical problems of the modern age. This course will explore such topics as the scientific, commercial, and industrial revolutions; the technologies of imperialism and the expansion of Western power; the roles of science and technology in the First World War and the Second World War; the influences of scientific and technological developments on the rise of modernism, consumerism, and globalization; the impact of science and technology on human health and the environment; and the changing interactions between humans, materials, and machines over time. It also aims to raise questions about the myths, promises, and perils of science and technology for contemporary society as well as the meaning of "progress" and the making of "a better world" through scientific and technological innovation.
